Albert Einstein College of Medicine

June 21, 2016 – 2:00 to 6:30 PM

The third-annual New York City Medical Education Subway Summit, held this year at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, will provide medical education faculty with a collegial venue to share scholarship and engage in substantive dialogue around shared areas of interest.

Plenary Speaker: Cristina M. Gonzalez, MD, MEd
Implicit Bias Recognition and Management: Teaching the Next Generation of Physicians

There will be two Roundtable Discussions:

- Teaching Academies
  Led by Deborah Cabaniss, MD, Director, Virginia Apgar Academy of Medical Educators Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons
- Diversity
  Led by Irene Blanco, MD, Associate Dean of Diversity Enhancement Albert Einstein College of Medicine

All institutions are invited to have their leaders and representatives of these topics attend the roundtable discussions. The Summit will also include concurrent sessions on topics in medical education.

Abstracts are due on May 2 and are invited from medical schools within New York City.

The Conference will be held in the Robbins Auditorium and the new Education Center, both located in the Leo Forchheimer Medical Science Building, 1300 Morris Park Avenue, Bronx, NY.
